Salt Lake City, June 12, 2015

The American Association of Medical Audit Specialists (AAMAS) "Maria Petz Auditor of the Year Award" is presented yearly in recognition of an auditor who demonstrates excellence in audit skills and execution of these skills in the workplace. The 2015 award has been given to David Eklof of DataMetrix.

Over the course of David's career he has spent time in both internal and external auditing positions. David currently heads up DataMetrix's clinical review department, his leadership and insights have helped the department reach never before seen levels of success. David has helped train hundreds of nurse auditors in auditing procedures and best practices for numerous organizations. "David's expertise and experience in nurse auditing is unparalleled," DataMetrix CEO Gary Twigg said, "David continues to set the bar higher for all auditors in the industry and we are proud to have him on our team."

DataMetrix has rich history of excellence in auditing hospital and medical bills. David is the second employee of DataMetrix who has won the AAMAS Maria Petz Auditor of the Year award. The DataMetrix leadership team has worked at every level to engineer, create, develop, standardize, teach, coach and implement many of the healthcare audit routines that today are the de facto industry standards. Today, DataMetrix and its employees are known and highly regarded as the content experts in our practice areas.
